TIGERS CAPTURE SCHOOL'S FIRST TITLE IN BASKETBALL

ROCK HILL, S.C. The last will forever be first for Clemson University's 1996 women's basketball team. They converted 18 of 20 free-throw attempts in the final 3:18. "It was very simple; They dominated us from opening tip to final buzzer," said Duke coach Gail Goestenkors, whose club succumbed in the ACC title game for the second time in as many seasons. "I couldn't be more impressed. They completely dominated us."

Clemson won its first Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championship yesterday -- men or women -- in what was, in all probability, the ACC women's final appearance.

Clemson women win title

Clemson women rock Duke win gives Tigers first ACC title

ROCK HILL, S.C. — Duke's hopes for its first ACC women's basketball title vanished quickly Sunday afternoon as Clemson dominated the championship game of the league's 19th annual tournament for a 71-54 victory.

The Tigers' aggressiveness, hot shooting and smothering defense built a big early lead, and the Blue Devils could never recover.

No. 4 seed Clemson completed a three-game weekend sweep and earned an automatic NCAA Tournament bid by sending No. 2 seed Duke to its second straight lopsided loss in an ACC final.

The Tigers (22-7) claimed their school's first ACC basketball crown.

"They came out and attacked us," Duke coach Gail Goestenkors said. "They had fire in their eyes, and they got us back on our heels. We let them take us out of our hands. We let them play."

"Clemson controlled the game," Cottrell said. "A crowd of 5,067 at the Winthrop Coliseum watched Clemson sprint to a 25-9 margin in the opening 9 1/2 minutes.

Duke had dissected that defense in a 75-67 victory over top-seeded Virginia in the opening game of the tournament. However, the Blue Devils were not as sharp in the championship game.

"They were more physical," Cottrell said. "They were in the perimeter, and we were open on the perimeter. Guard Kira Orr had 15 points but missed 12 shots. Intensity had to be there."

"We didn't want to get up to any commitments," Stephanie Ridgeway said. "We had to be ready for anything."

The No. 22 Tigers hit 11 of their first 14 shots and generated a tenacious, physical defense which blocked No. 12 Duke's usual potent offense.

"In no way did we match their intensity," said Kira Orr, the lone Duke player to score in double figures.

"They were 20 times more intense than we were. . . . What makes the loss a little more painful is they out-busted us."

Duke (25-8) never led, and Clemson finished with a season-low six turnovers.

"We came out from the get-go and hustled," Clemson senior guard Stephanie Ridgeway said. "We were determined to win. The whole weekend we were focused and loose."

Laura Cottrell, voted the tournament MVP, made 3 of 13 shots, grabbed a game-high 12 rebounds and scored 10 points.

Cottrell, a 6-1 junior forward, had a season-high 16 rebounds and 12 points during Saturday's 75-57 semifinal victory over top-seeded Virginia.

"I think we all played hard against Duke," Cottrell said.

Stephanie Ridgeway, who beat the Tigers tempo like they did," Duke senior Ali Day said.

The Blue Devils, who beat the Tigers twice during the regular season, knew the Clemson defenders were adept at quick switches, double teams, strong blockouts and bumping opponents as they try to penetrate.

"They're a very physical team. They're just tough players," Goestenkors said. "I would have to say they're the most physical team in the conference."

When our execution should have been the best, it was the worst," said Goestenkors.

Wing player Amy Geren led the Tigers with 12 points. Forward Laura Cottrell, the tournament MVP, contributed 10 points and 12 rebounds. Orr scored 10 points for Duke.

Third time a charm for Lady Tigers in ACC finals

CHARLOTTE - It took three tries, but Clemson's Lady Tigers finally got it right.

Clemson knocked off North Carolina 87-72 Monday night in the ACC Women's Basketball tournament final at Independence Arena, getting two years worth of revenge on the Lady Tar Heels.

Especially after last year. Though the 1997 championship game ended in a 62-56 North Carolina win, the Lady Tar Heels humiliated Clemson 81-55 in last year's final.

"I think Itoro Umoh said it best before the basketball game," Clemson coach Jim Davis said. "She said she was tired of losing to North Carolina, who she had a tremendous basketball program. We've got a tremendous basketball program."

The win provided a nice bookend for 1998-ranked Clemson's senior class.

The Lady Tigers (24-5) also won the ACC tourney final in 1996, when All-ACC guard Amy Geren and Umoh were teammates.

"It's a big difference," Umoh said of this year's victory. "My freshman year I didn't understand why everyone in the stands was so happy. It seemed like another win to me."

"Now that I've been in the Clemson program four years, I understand better why I mean to win one of these."

Umoh's senior class - Clemson's leading scorer Amy Geren - averaged 14.3 points per game and 11.3 rebounds on a pair of free throws, enough offense to lead the team to the crown.

Umoh had 12 points and 11 rebounds in the 26-6 season.

But her biggest field goal of the weekend was her last one.

With 4:46 left in the game, Umoh effectively ended North Carolina's hopes by drilling a 25-foot, rainbow-arc 3-pointer to give the Lady Tigers a 71-61 lead.

After that point, North Carolina (26-7) got no closer than six points and after Clemson hit 11 straight free throws in the final 1:50, the celebration was on.

Clemson also showed its versatility Monday night, making most of its shots after squawking out a pair of wins over N.C. State and Duke in the first two rounds with defense only.

The Lady Tigers shot 50.9 percent after making just 40.8 percent against Duke and 31.7 against N.C. State, leaving Davis thinking his team must be pretty fortunate.

"I feel like I was 13 young ladies in orange uniforms more than late," Davis said. "In order to win a championship, you have to be good and be lucky."

"I think this basketball team's really darned good."

They were especially darned good early in the second half.

North Carolina led 43-36 at half-time, but used an 15-4 run to take a 53-40 lead with 13:12 remaining on a layup by Nikki Blasingame.

Clemson also outscored North Carolina 40-30 in the paint for the game, despite only pulling down seven offensive rebounds.

Forwards Natasha Anderson and Blasingame combined for 32 points, easily outscoring their UNC counterparts Chanel Wright and LaQuana Barkdale, who totaled 19.

"You know what you're getting?" Amy Geren and Itoro Umoh, but

ACC Champs; Tigers rally to topple North Carolina

CHARLOTTE - The Clemson women's basketball team is currently enjoying the best season in school history.

Umoh Monday night, though, Clemson still had one demon hovering overhead, one team who always seemed superior.

But in tension-packed Independence Arena, Clemson finally slayed its North Carolina demon with a string second-half comeback, and grabbed its second ACC title with an 87-72 win.

"This was just so beautiful, to finally take down the team that's owned us for what seems like a long, long time," said Clemson coach Jim Davis. "We have a little saying on our team: Focus on the process, and not the product. And tonight, we finally won the product."

"They go to the foul line 42 times, we go 10; that's the difference in the game," said UNC coach Sylvia Hatchell, whose team was bidding for a third straight ACC tournament title. "Down the stretch we had all the shots we wanted to get, but we just absolutely couldn't hit them."

The Tigers showed guts, heart, and a simple will to win against a Tar Heel team that had beaten Clemson four straight times, including in the last two ACC title games.

But led by a veteran core of seniors that was making its fourth straight final game appearance, the fourth-seeded Tigers (24-5) rallied from a seven-point halftime deficit.

Two sources - one likely, one highly unlikely - led Clemson past a tired North Carolina team in the second half. Tigers senior guard Itoro Umoh, was unstoppable down the stretch, scoring 15 of her game-high 26 points in the second half.

"This one makes up for all the losses," said the biggest Umoh, who was 8-of-13 from the field. "I knew if we just keep the score close, we'd find a way to win, because we had to have wanted this game more."

Umoh's brilliance is well-documented; the player no one had a clue about was Tigers reserve guard Angie Cooney. A junior college transfer from Little North Arkansas College, Cooney subbed for the surprisingly ineffective Amy Geren (two points) in the second half and scored a career-high 12 points, including hitting 7 of 8 free throws.

Mearnsville, UNC (26-7) couldn't get anything going on offense after intermission. With North Carolina's Juana Brown and Nikki Treadley struggling from the field, the third-seeded Tar Heels couldn't find any other offensive weapons, and shot just 32 percent after the break.

Making matters worse for the Heels, senior guard Chanel Wright suffered an eye injury with 3:19 to go, and her leadership was sorely missed when UNC started firing desperate 3-point attempts toward the game's end.

"We kind of just went into a log of offense for a few minutes at a time," said Tar Heels guard Jessica Casper.

After the Tigers rallied to tie the game at 55 with 10:27 to play, Clemson took control. With senior forwards Natasha Anderson and Nikki Blasingame pounding the offensive glass (13 rebounds combined), the Tigers embarked on a 14-4 run over a 4:06 span to put the game away.

Cooney's 3-pointer put the Tigers up 61-55 with 7:50 left, and a minute later two free throws by Cooney gave Clemson a 66-59 edge. Then, after a defensive stop, Umoh made the play of the game. With the shot clock down to two, Umoh drained a 27-foot jumper from the left side that gave the Tigers a 69-59 lead with 4:41 left.

"I didn't look at the bench after I shot it because I knew if I missed coach (Davis) may have killed me," Umoh laughed.

"Umoh's a terrific player, she can penetrate and dish and do everything," Hatchell said. "We had a tough time defensively on her."

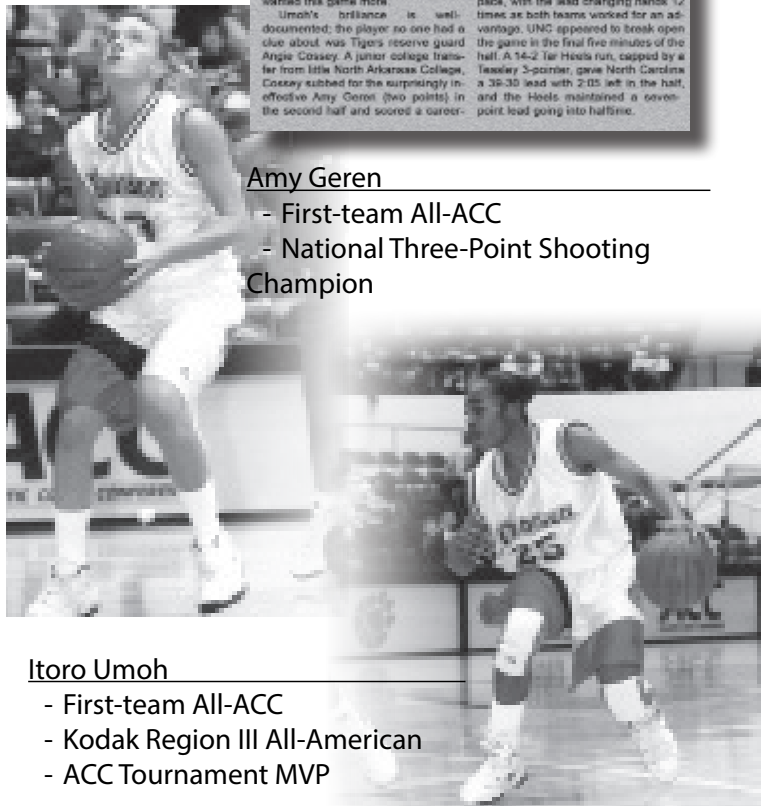

In the final four minutes the Tar Heels closed to within six points on two occasions, but Clemson's outstanding free throw shooting down the stretch (10-of-10 in the final 1:18) sealed the win for the Tigers, who now will likely host a first-round NCAA Tournament game.

Brown led UNC with 23 points. Treadley added 19. It was just North Carolina's second loss in its last 10 ACC Tournament games.

The first half was played at a fast pace, with the lead changing hands 12 times as both teams worked for an advantage. UNC appeared to break open the game in the final five minutes of the half. A 14-2 Tar Heels run, capped by a Treadley 3-pointer, gave North Carolina a 39-30 lead with 2:05 left in the half, and the Heels maintained a seven-point lead going into halftime.

CLEMSON ALL-TIME GREAT BARBARA KENNEDY

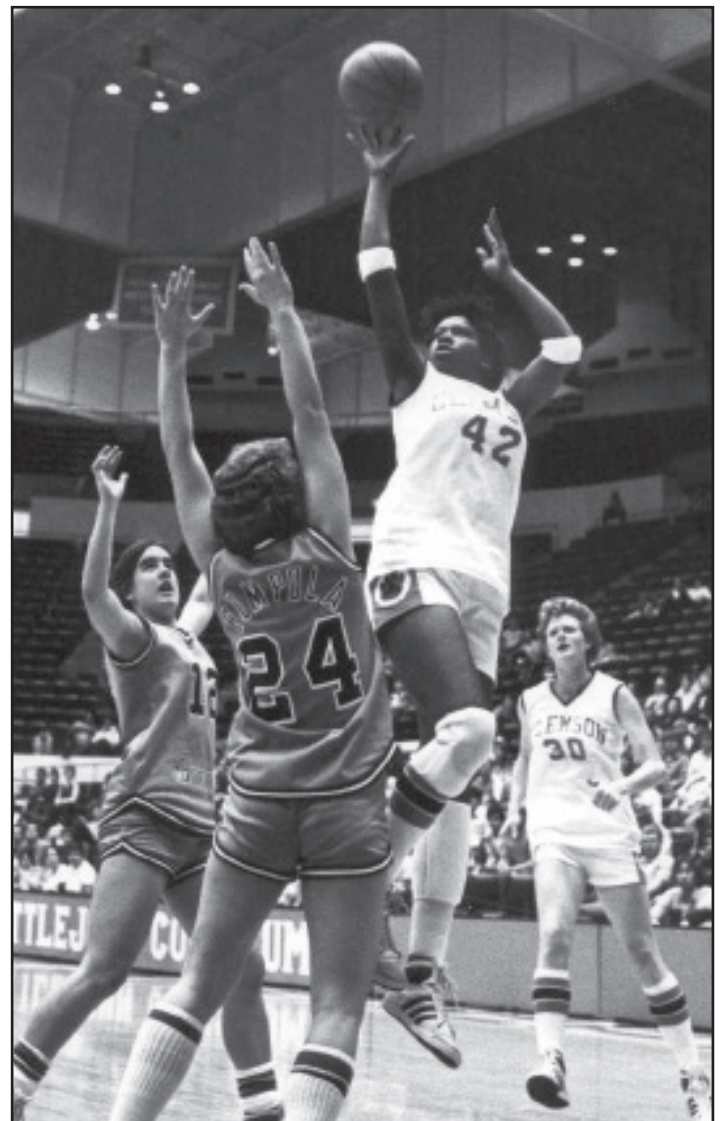

BARBARA KENNEDY

1978-1982
Forward
Rome, GA

"Barbara Kennedy is a great player. What makes Barbara difficult to defend is her ability to play with her back to the basket, or facing up, she can score in either situation. The bottom line is, a lot can shoot the ball but she can score and score and score."

-Pat Summitt, University of Tennessee

- All-American in 1981 and 1982
- First-Team All-ACC 1980, 1981, 1982
- ACC Tournament MVP 1981, 1982

Mary King

1975-1976

Mary Kennerty King served as the first head coach of the Clemson women's basketball and women's tennis teams after Athletic Director Bill McLellan announced that the university would begin women's programs in both for the 1975-76 season. King earned a Bachelor's of Arts in secondary education from Clemson in 1973. She spent the next year teaching history and coaching girls' basketball at Russell High School in Atlanta, GA before returning to Clemson as a graduate student. The women's basketball team compiled a 14-11 record in its inaugural season under King, while the women's tennis team went 10-6 in its first year. King continued to coach the tennis team for the next six years but handed over the reins to the basketball team to Annie Tribble.

Annie Tribble

Annie Tribble was named the head coach of the Lady Tiger basketball program on May 28, 1976 and held the position until February 28, 1987. She compiled an impressive 200-135 ledger at Clemson with a 348-147 record in 19 years of collegiate coaching. Seven times her teams collected 20 or more victories, and she guided the Lady Tigers to seven post-season tournaments.

Prior to her arrival at Clemson, Tribble spent nine seasons at Anderson Junior College, where she directed the Trojans to three National Junior College Championships and one runner-up finish. She won over 82 percent of her games at Anderson, finishing with a 155-33 record.

Player honors during Tribble's reign include five All-Americans and eight all-conference players. In addition, Tribble was named the South Carolina Coach-of-the-Year in 1977 and served as the coach of the South Team for the National Sports Festival III games in 1981. A member of many collegiate steering committees, Tribble was a guiding force on the United States Olympic Committee that was instrumental in selecting the 1976 U.S. Silver Medal team.

Jim Davis

Jim Davis spent 18 seasons at the helm of the Lady Tiger basketball program, guiding Clemson to 355 victories in 552 games. He brought the program into national prominence and left as the winningest basketball coach in Clemson history, men or women. He led the Lady Tigers to 14 NCAA Tournament appearances and 11 final national rankings.

Davis is the only Clemson basketball coach to win the ACC Championship, leading the Lady Tigers to the tournament title in 1996 and 1999. He finished with 51 wins over top 25 teams, and his teams won at least 20 games in 11 of his 18 seasons with Clemson.

Under Davis' direction, 16 former Lady Tigers achieved All-ACC status. Included in the list was Jessica Barr, the 1994 ACC Player-of-the-Year. Davis coached Ito Umoh, a former assistant coach under him, to three All-ACC seasons and former great Chrissy Floyd to four All-ACC seasons.

Davis also coached two ACC Tournament MVPs in Laura Cottrell and Umoh. Cottrell claimed the honors in 1996 when Davis led the Lady Tigers to their first ever ACC Championship. Umoh was named MVP in 1999 when Davis and the Lady Tigers claimed their second conference title. Clemson had four selections to the ACC's 50-Year Anniversary team in 2002, and three of the four played under Davis.

In 2002-03, Davis' team did not make postseason play for the first time in 16 years under his direction. That is quite an accomplishment when you consider the duration of his tenure with the Lady Tigers. The 2001-02 season saw Davis win his 300th game at Clemson. The Lady Tigers finished the year with a 17-12 record overall, and another NCAA appearance.

In the 2000-01 season, Clemson advanced to the NCAA Tournament's second round, and the Lady Tigers finished the season with a 21-10 record overall. Clemson was ranked 22nd in both the USA Today and Associated Press final polls. The Lady Tigers also had four wins over top 25 teams. The 1999-2000 season Clemson finished with a 19-12 record overall and advanced to the NCAA Tournament's second round.

The 1998-99 season was a record-breaking year as the Lady Tigers finished with a 26-6 record overall and the school's second ACC Championship in four years. His team also advanced to the NCAA's Final 16, his fourth visit to this level in his Clemson career. Clemson was also seeded second in the Mideast Region, the highest seed in the school's history. The Lady Tigers also were ranked 10th in the final Associated Press poll, the highest finish for the Lady Tigers ever in that poll.

The 1997-98 season was a record-breaking year as the Lady Tigers set the school record for most ACC wins (12) in a single season as Clemson finished with a 25-8 record overall. The Lady Tigers also went undefeated at home (13-0) for the first time in school history. The Lady Tigers finished 14th in the Associated Press poll and 21st in the USA Today listing.

In 1996-97, Davis became the school's winningest coach. He also guided the Lady Tigers to another NCAA Tournament appearance. The 1996-97 Lady Tigers finished ranked 21st in the Associated Press poll and 25th in the USA Today listing.

At the 1996 ACC Tournament, Davis led his fourth-seeded Lady Tigers to the championship with victories over North Carolina, Virginia, and Duke, the school's first ACC Championship.

Clemson finished the magical 1995-96 season with a 23-8 record overall, then tied for the second most victories in a season by a Clemson team. Clemson was seeded third in the 1996 NCAA Midwest region. The Lady Tigers also finished 14th in the 1996 final Associated Press poll.

In 1991, Davis led the Lady Tigers to the NCAA Tournament's Elite Eight, before Clemson lost in the finals of the East Regional. It was the farthest Clemson ever advanced in a women's postseason national tournament.

The Lady Tigers concluded the 1990-91 season with a 22-11 record overall, and ranked 21st in the final Associated Press poll, and eighth in the final USA Today poll. The eighth-place ranking is the highest the Lady Tigers have ever been ranked in any poll at any time.

In 1989 and 1990, the Lady Tigers advanced to the NCAA Tournament's Final 16. In 1990, he was named ACC Coach-of-the-Year, the first of two selections (1994 the other) for Davis.

In 1987-88, his rookie campaign at Clemson, Davis put his stamp on the Lady Tiger program in unprecedented fashion. In one short year, he tripled the number of wins of the 1986-87 team by turning a 7-21 club into a 21-9 squad in 1987-88, and it was also the best turnaround season in the history of the ACC.

Davis became the third women's basketball coach in Clemson history on April 1, 1987, another illustrious step in a career that saw him excel on every level of coaching from junior high school to head coaching at a major college.

Davis graduated from Tennessee Wesleyan in 1970 with a B.S. degree in health and physical education. After doing graduate work at East Tennessee State, he received his master's degree in supervision and administration from Tennessee Tech in 1975.

In 1996, Davis was inducted into the Tennessee Junior and Community College Athletic Association (TJCCAA) Hall-of-Fame. In the fall of 1996, he was inducted into Tiger Brotherhood, an honorary fraternity that promotes high standards of social and ethical conduct while recognizing in its members an earnest devotion to Clemson, coupled with the integrity of character commensurate with a typical Clemson gentleman or lady. Davis was also inducted into the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame in the fall of 2008.

He is currently the head coach at his alma mater, Tennessee Tech.

Cristy McKinney

2005-2010

Cristy McKinney served as head coach of the program for five seasons from 2005-06 until 2009-10. McKinney coached one of Clemson's best players in Lele Hardy.

McKinney coached Hardy to two All-ACC seasons and two ACC All-Defensive team selections. Hardy ended her career ranked fifth in Clemson history in scoring, third in rebounding, and first in steals. Her 398 steals ranked 23rd in NCAA Division-I history when she ended her career in 2009-10.

McKinney improved on the win totals in three of her five seasons, and led Clemson to its first home winning mark in ACC play since the 2002-03 season in 2009-10 when the Tigers went 4-3 in league play and 9-5 at home overall.

Prior to her time at Clemson, McKinney spent nine seasons at Rice, where her teams won 20 or more games six times. McKinney attended NC State where she played under Kay Yow. McKinney still holds freshman scoring records for the Wolfpack, and she ended her career with more than 1000 points and 500 rebounds.

Ito Coleman

2010-12

Ito Coleman spent three seasons as the head coach of the program. She compiled a career record of 25-63 in three seasons as Clemson's head coach, and a 10-38 record against ACC teams.

She led Clemson to an historic win at No. 21 North Carolina, the first signature win as a head coach, during the 2011-12 season. It was Clemson's first win against a ranked team on the road since the 2003-04 season, and the Lady Tigers held the Heels to their fewest points in school history at home in the 52-47 win.

Defensively, Coleman's team took 23 charges in 2011-12, and set a school record for shot-blocking with 168, which ranked fourth-best in the nation.

As a player at Clemson, she led the Lady Tigers to a pair of ACC Tournament championships as the team's point guard. Clemson won the conference title her freshman year, 1995-96, and her senior year, 1998-99. She was the tournament's MVP as a senior, in addition to a first-team All-ACC selection.

That same season, she was an honorable mention AP All-American. She was selected to the ACC's 50-Year Anniversary team in 2002, one of just four Clemson players honored by the conference. Coleman still ranks 11th in Clemson history in scoring (1,409 points), fourth in games played (127), second in free throws made, third in assists, and first in assist-to-turnover ratio (1.73).

Clemson had a record of 93-33 in her four years as a player, the most wins in Clemson history for a senior class. Her senior class won the only two ACC Championships in school history, played in four NCAA Tournaments, including one Sweet 16 season, and all four of her teams were ranked in the final top-25, including a final #10 AP rank in 1999. She was inducted into the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame as a player in 2008.
